SUNDAY IN GUNTUR
A word from Dr. Mary R. Fleming, Advice from India tell of Dr. M. R. Fleming's welfare, she being nicely situated and happily employed in mission work while learning the language. We bespeak the prayers of christians for this devoted mission-ary of the Cross. She writes as follows:
Sunday begins at six o'clock instead of five thirty as week days do, for the College S. S. has pressed me into service as a teacher, and it begins at seven fifteen. It is a pleasant walk in the morning through our own big compound under the palm and mango trees, and then about a quarter of a mile along the road to the big rambling school building where the S. S. is held. There are about two hundred boys here. Some are from Christian families and some are still Hindu. The latter can be recognized in most cases by the fact that they wear their hair long and coiled into a knot at the back of the head, and often have the head shaved in front. The hymn books are locked up this morning and we can't get them, so we sing two hymns from memory. The other lady teacher and myself are evidently expected to lead, which is embarrassing as we find that neither of us knows more than the first verse and the chorus. But we all come out strong on the chorus each time and so get through. I have an interesting class of fourteen to sixteen year olds, who know English, some Christian and some Hindu. I am glad to be able to do a little in this way while I am learning the language.
We go immediately from there to the Teluge service at 8:30. There has already been a service for the children at 7:30. There are, however, plenty of children at the 8:30 service too. Most of the people are dressed in clean clothes, all the school boys in neat cotton coats and trousers, and the girls in funny long skirts down to their bare feet, and short jackets that button straight down the front. The older girls and women wear the graceful sari that drapes the skirt and then goes over one shoulder and is pulled over the head. The unmarried girls plait their hair in long pig tails and frequently put a marigold just at the beginning of the braid, and it shows up well in the black hair.
By the time the service begins the church seems well filled, but still they keep coming in until there are five or six hundred. When the seats are all full they begin sitting on the floor. Some of these are not so well dressed. Boys there are with only a shirt, little girls who seem quite embarrassed in only a pair of full trousers gathered about the waist; while babies run about clad in a shiny brown skin, a smile and a string of beads. In the aisle near me one of the officers of the church sits on the floor with the crowd gathered there and sees to it that the older children keep reasonably quiet, and if a baby cries too much he sends the mother out with it. Meantime the native pastor, whose dignity in his white robe is not at all impaired by his bare feet is preaching eloquently in the sonorous Teluge, not disturbed by such small things as babies. And indeed most of the people listen well through a long service.
Home we go to breakfast, about eleven thirty, having had our "little breakfast" at seven. There is a Mohammedan S. S. at two thirty, which those who know Hindustani attend, but the Telugu S. S. is at four thirty, and this is the greatest sight of all. Nearly a thousand men, woman and children fill the church for a rather long opening service. It is well conducted by the native superintendent, and the responsive reading would put to shame the same sort of thing in many of our home churches. They sing the Telugu lyrics, wild and sweet and beautifully harmonious. Then they file out by classes, and groups big and little gather round their teachers, sitting on the ground under trees or in the shade of the walls all over the big church yard, while the primaries gather in the school house near by, and in its yard and porches. It is a wonderful sight to see in a heathen land and makes one's heart rejoice at the power of the Gospel that has brought this to pass and at all it means for the future of this people.
After S. S. there is about an hour before the English service, and though we have been going to church all day we do not want to miss hearing a sermon in our own tongue. The ministers among the missionaries take turns in preaching. Then we go home to our eight o'clock dinner, and after that have a little time for reading and remembering Sundays in other lands.

WAR LETTERS
In looking over some old papers, W. W. Arbogast, of Greenbank found a number of letters written by his father, George Washington Arbogast, to his wife, who is now Mrs. Ellen Brown, while in the Confederate Army. He was a member of the Greenbank Company, 31st Virginia Infantry. He was killed in battle, at Fort Republic, if our memory serves us right.
Camp Summersville Ford, March 13, 1864.
My dear Wife:—
As Mr. Fleming's boys I thought I had better write you as I know you like to hear from me. I am well and getting along very well. I was on picket when Hill started on his march. I suppose you got the letter I sent by him. When on picket I saw some of the Yank pickets. Sometimes they shoot at each other and sometimes they trade papers and other things.
Sentence was read yesterday evening on three of our men. Each one is to do twelve months hard labor in Richmond with a ball not weighing over twelve pounds, and a chain not less than three feet long attached to their ankle. Two were taken from here this morning. Poor fellows, I pity them. It is generally thought they will have another hearing and be released. The Reg't. dislikes it very much.
I have not seen nor heard anything from Howard yet. I heard Warwick had gone from his company on a sick furlough. Hope he is in Pocahontas or Highland enjoying himself finely. I was at preaching at Gen. Eweis Head Qs. Preaching twice every Sunday. Willing has been promoted to Captain and Warwick to 1st Lieut. It is thought generally that the 31st will go to north western Virginia this spring.
If Warwick is in Pocahontas or Highland, don't let him join Jackson's Command. A law has been passed that a man must stay in the same Company and Regiment unless transferred by some means. I don't want to hear of him having a ball and chain to his foot.
I could have drawn my money yesterday, but as we can get it in the new issue by waiting from two to four months. I thought I had better wait. The amount due me is nearly four hundred and seventy dollars, $470.00. I still have ten dollars. Things are very high and we can't buy much. You must send me some more thread; the thread we can get is not strong enough. Is your mother still with you? How are you getting along? Take good care of the lambs as they come, don't forget that.
How are my dear little children? I miss them smartly, also their mother. Would love to see you all. Mind, do not let them get the master of you if I get the pleasure of getting home I want to see obedient children, sweet little things, kiss them for me. I will enclose two combs for you and Willie; they are of my own manufacture, the first.
Your loving husband,
Wash.

DIED
J. B. Alderman, better known as Hoxie Alderman, died at his home on Douthards Creek March 16, 1922, aged 42 years and 27 days. He was first stricken with neuralgia then with pleurisy both of which were on the way to recovery when his heart gave way.
Mr. Alderman was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Octave Alderman, both having preceded him to the grave several years.
He leaves to mourn his loss a wife, who was formerly Miss Annie Boggs, of Alton, three children, Theodore, Mary and Nellie, all at home, five brothers, one sister and a host of relatives and friends.
In his death the wife has lost a faithful helpmate, the children a loving father, and the community an upright citizen who was always ready to assist his fellowmen. May our loss be heaven's gain. He left these blessed words to his family and friends: "Don't worry about me. I am ready to go."
Burial services were conducted at his home March 19th by his pastor, Rev. O. P. McNeil assisted by Rev. H. Underwood after which the body was borne to the family burying ground and laid away in its final resting place near his three infant children whose spirits were in glory to welcome father to that eternal home of happiness.
The words of one of his favorite hymns seems so appropriate for his farewell message to this earth.
"I'm going home, All glory to the Lamb,
Jesus will take me now as I am,
Soon I'll be there with friends who've gone before.
Oh, happy meeting! We'll meet to part no more."

Now
that the severe winter weather is over, is it not time to think of erecting Memorials to those who have gone before? This is a duty we owe to our beloved dead.
We have the largest assortment of Marble and Granite Monuments carried by any dealer in the two Virginias and at VERY REASONABLE prices. We handle nothing but the very best material.
Write us for designs and prices before you buy. We guarantee you perfect satisfaction in every respect.
